

New Product Development From Construction/Demolition Debris

Want to develop a new end market for a material coming into your recycling facility? The CDRA End Markets Development has created a guidelines document that covers all the aspects needed for that process. Each material is different and will have specific nuances to deal with. But the CDRA is providing a general overview of what needs to be considered with this paper, "New Product Development From Construction/Demolition Debris."

Thanks to the CDRA End Markets Development Committee for the creation and execution of the document. For more specific questions, or how to access the full document, please contact the CDRA at info@cdrecycling.org; 866-758-4721
