Take It from the Pros: CDRA Membership Helps You Overcome Challenges!

"We've always been strong proponents of collaboration with like-minded firms and individuals. Being part of the CDRA in that sense is a no-brainer. It's really eye-opening to discuss the challenges of our sector with so many peers from across the country, and we've found success in that, and collaborating to address many of the hurdles we face on a regular basis. Of course, it's also important for our industry to speak with a unified voice and we really believe the CDRA does an excellent job at that."

William Cooper, Director of Business Development, Cooper Recycling

"We joined the CDRA to be on the leading edge of C&D recycling innovation and solutions. Through the CDRA, we have the opportunity to collaborate with other haulers and recyclers from across the country and work together to advance recycling."

Bill Bradley, CEO, Starlight Software Solutions

"The CDRA has always been a reliable resource for Staton and me personally for any conflicts, questions, and problems associated with rules and regulations in the demolition recycling industry. More importantly, the fast responses and answers I have always received have saved my bacon on several occasions. It's the kind of service that creates instant and long-lasting loyalty between good business associates and friends."

Ron Richey, CEO, Staton Companies
